

City Council Approves FY12 Budget, Keeps Promise of No Tax Increase

by Thomas X. White

After 10 worksessions on the City of Greenbelt’s departmental budgets and two official public hearings on the Fiscal Year 2012 budget, the city council made several changes to the budget proposed in early March by City Manager Michael McLaughlin. In the final analysis, however, council approved a budget that maintained the property tax rate at the same level (79 cents) as last year. The actual budget adoption took place at council’s regular meeting on June 6.

Six councilmembers who were present made the host of changes to the budget and then adopted it. Councilmember Rodney Roberts was the lone voter against its adoption. Councilmember Edward Putens, who arrived after the votes had been taken, indicated his support of the changes and adoption of the amended budget.

Roberts said he opposed the increase in fees for the Planning and Community Development’s inspection program because of the additional burden on Greenbelt businesses. Since an ordinance to raise those fees was not before the council at that meeting, Roberts said he was put in the position of voting against the entire budget.

Six categories of changes had been suggested during the budget worksessions and informally agreed to by council at its final budget worksession on May 18. One was a $120,000 increase in Highway User Revenue from the State of Maryland. This increase brought total tax revenue projected for the city in FY12 to $20,480,700.

Another change was a decrease of $40,000 in revenue due to ending of the partnership with Beltway Plaza for provision of a Greenbelt Police officer at the shopping mall. With that decrease, the total for Miscellaneous Revenue projected for FY12 was $197,300. With those two changes, council approved the Total General Fund Revenue amount for FY12 at $25,803,800, just $80,000 more than the manager’s proposed budget.

Expenditures

On the expenditure side, several changes either increased or decreased the manager’s proposal. One was council’s decision to provide a one percent one-time bonus for all Greenbelt classified employees. Across all city departments this added $159,000 to FY12 expenditures.

Other individual increases in expenditures included $2,000 for council outreach to the Greenbelt business community. This increase came after council had been persuaded by Councilmembers Konrad Herling and Emmett Jordan to support more interactions with Greenbelt businesses.

Another expenditure increase ($16,300) resulted when council restored its customary contribution to Greenbelt Access Television (GATE) that had been earlier reduced during the economic downturn. Council also approved increases for its membership in the Council of Government’s Greater

In addition to adopting the city’s Fiscal Year 2012 budget (see story above), the Greenbelt City Council meeting on June 6 heard presentations and dealt with legislation, bid awards and selection of audit services for Fiscal Year 2011. Six councilmembers were present at the beginning of the session, with Councilmember Edward Putens arriving shortly after final action on the budget for the new fiscal year.

Presentations

The meeting was opened by three elementary school students who were Greenbelt finalists in the Maryland Municipal League’s “If I Were Mayor” contest. Kiya Dean and Leslie Rios of Springhill Lake Elementary School and Nijaya Jones from Greenbelt Elementary School sat in council chairs and played the roles of mayor in the opening segments of the meeting and presented the essays that had gained them “finalist” awards in the contest for Prince George’s County schools.

The mayoral platforms for the three young women included programs reflecting Greenbelt’s green culture such as recycling, beautification, gardening and resident services.

Since several Springhill Lake and Greenbelt Elementary school teachers were present, council used the occasion to honor local school teachers who had recently obtained National Board Certification. Stephanie Katz, fourth-grade teacher at Greenbelt Elementary School; Rebecca Howell, science teacher; Anne Koroknay, English teacher; and Jennifer Massagli, science teacher at Eleanor Roosevelt High, who were present, were recognized. Others recognized were Johanna Long, mathematics teacher at Springhill Lake Elementary, and Angela Bettick, English teacher; Margaret Brosnan, science teacher; Christina Kim, mathematics teacher; and Kathleen Veety-Martin, science teacher at Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

Council also honored Brian Weeks, a sixth-grade mathematics teacher at Greenbelt Elementary School, for his selection as one of The Washington Post’s 2011 Agnes Meyer Outstanding Teacher Awards for Prince George’s County. The Agnes Meyer awards are presented annually to one teacher from each Washington metropolitan area school district.

Following the presentations, Doug Love and Bertram Donn reported on Peace Month activities in Greenbelt. Donn asked council to support a resolution to the U.S. Congress requesting a redirection of funds from defense to domestic social programs.

Legislation

An ordinance to amend the City Code by adding a new section on “Notice of Foreclosures” was introduced for first reading and will be considered by council at a future meeting. The proposed ordinance, prepared by the city solicitor at the request of council, will require lending institutions to provide written notice to the city within five days of their filing of an Order/ Complaint regarding foreclosure of a mortgage or deed of trust on a residential property located in the city.

The proposed ordinance also provides for a violation creating a municipal infraction (fine) if a foreclosure occurs without notification to the city. The legislation was prompted by situations where the city was not aware of property foreclosures. Council was concerned that such vacant properties could become derelict.

A resolution was also introduced for first reading that would authorize negotiation of a contract with Romero Construction Company of Rockville, Md., for facility renovations up to $90,000 at Springhill Lake Recreation

Crime Data Shows Decline During First Four Months

by James Giese

Following a similar trend for Prince George’s County, crime in Greenbelt continues to diminish, based on Greenbelt Police crime data for the first four months of 2011. Compared to the same period a year ago, the number of crimes during this period has dropped by four percent.

At 340, the number was the lowest for the last five years. These figures reflect a general trend over the past several years of reduction in the total number of crimes committed.

The four categories of crimes against persons (murder, rape, robbery and aggravated assault) dropped by 20 percent for the period. There were no murders during this period for either year but reported rapes increased from two to three with one each in Greenbelt Center, Franklin Park and Beltway Plaza.

Crimes against property were only slightly fewer than in 2010 with a 19 percent drop in motor vehicle thefts offset by an eight percent increase in breaking and entering (B&Es).

Police Chief James Craze attributes the drop in motor vehicle thefts to concentrated traffic enforcement, special detail squads and new computer equipment. Patrol cars are now equipped with license plate scanners that can instantly identify vehicles reported stolen.

The most improved residential area for crime reduction for the first four months occurred in Greenbelt East, where crime dropped almost 24 percent. B&Es dropped from 31 to 19, larcenies from 81 to 62 and motor vehicle thefts from 10 to eight. No rapes were reported this year as compared to one in 2010. Robberies, however, were up by one to 11; aggravated assaults doubled to two.

Franklin Park

The Franklin Park sector of Greenbelt West also experienced a significant crime drop for the first four months, almost eight percent. Here robberies dropped by almost 58 percent, from 19 to 8. Motor vehicle thefts dropped by 46 percent. Larcenies and

City Programs Encourage Elementary School Art

by Anne Gardner

Eighty excited kindergartners exclaimed over the sculptures in the Community Center hallways on Monday, June 13 before crowding into the art rooms to immerse themselves in the joys of creativity, making animals out of clay, collage and paint. They had walked from Greenbelt Elementary School for a day of art adventures with art instructors from the Recreation Department.

This year every grade at Greenbelt Elementary School, from kindergarten through sixth grade, has taken a field trip to the Community Center, enjoying the pleasant walk through Old Greenbelt to get there. Most other field trips involve the hassle and expense of chartering buses to transport the children further afield, so the ability to walk was an added bonus.

Staff and students also welcomed the opportunity to work with materials they do not usually have access to at school and to be able to make the kind of mess that is not acceptable in a regular classroom.

County art teachers visit each classroom only once per quarter, so there is very little opportunity for children to learn and to express themselves through art unless they take field trips such as these or unless the classroom teacher is skilled and confident enough to incorporate art into regular classes.

Grade Level Topics

The workshops were designed to tie into the curriculum for each grade level. Since kindergarten students were exploring “A World of Animals,” they created animals from different media and local

Turner Visits Greenbelt Seniors for Luncheon

by Mary Moien

On June 10 Greenbelt’s County Councilmember Ingrid Turner hosted a luncheon and meeting with approximately 40 seniors. Mayor Judith Davis and Greenbelt Councilmember Ed Putens also attended. Following some informal conversation with Turner and her staff and a very nice catered luncheon, Turner updated residents on budget and other activities in the county.

Turner discussed a number of issues including the county’s AAA bond rating. She described the fact that the state has a State Health Improvement Plan and Prince George’s County will develop its own plan to improve access to health. She expects funds for improvements to be made to the hospitals within the county as well as extra funds to be devoted to the Department of Aging. The county also plans to develop a master plan of recreation facilities within the county.

In the area of education, a number of budget cuts were proposed. However, Turner indicated that 1) money was added back into the budget for buses to magnet and specialty schools; 2) the Reading Recovery program will be funded; and 3) Camp Schmidt will still be free and at the same level of activities as in past years.

Greenbelt resident John Henry Jones asked about the new $50 a year fee for children to play sports after school. The councilwoman provided a detailed response. She stated that enrollment is down so that state funding to the county is down. One way to make up some money is by charging varsity and junior varsity players a once a year fee. The fee remains at $50 regardless of the number of sports a student participates in during the year.

Turner stated that the schools will have funds to assist students who are unable to pay and she has heard that some school PTAs will also be assisting with the fee if needed.

The county will continue to pay for school resource officers at the high school level. She indicated that Greenbelt will be reimbursed for its school resource officer. The officers had been assigned to the Department of Education but will now be assigned to the police departments.

Turner continued with descriptions of other county activities. At least half of all road resurfacing work must use county residents as workers.

She described a GreenStreets project where streets and sidewalks and gutters are designed to decrease the amount of water that flows down storm drains into the Bay. The town of Edmonston is one of the first municipalities to undertake these modifications.

Following state-level task force findings and discussions on ethics, the state will be coming out shortly with a report of findings. However, the county has already made plans to organize an ethics office with a stand-alone ethics lawyer and executive director, routine ethics meetings.

Redistricting

In ending her presentation, Turner mentioned that redistricting has not been completed. She indicated there is a definite possibility that shifts in population may mean shifts in Greenbelt’s district. Some cities that are now in one district may need to be divided between two districts which she indicated can be bad or good. One district is good because of the cohesiveness of the population. However a city such as Bowie, currently in two districts, has twice the number of councilmembers looking out for them.

She did not give a date of completion for the redistricting.

Turner then asked for questions from the floor. Several Greenbelters had questions or concerns. Solange Hess was interested in any progress at the old Glenn Dale Hospital, where asbestos removal and other problems seem to be keeping the area from being redeveloped. Hess was also wondering what the county was doing to assist the working homeless. Regarding Glenn Dale, Turner indicated that there appears to be no current interest in developing the property. She indicated that the county is very concerned about the homeless but the response was short on specifics. Suze Marley described the very uneven and broken concrete at the front entrance to the Greenbelt Library and how the elderly and those in wheelchairs would have a very difficult time. That area is under county control. Mayor Davis indicated that the city has been in discussion with the county to get it fixed.

Turner was not aware of the problem and promised to investigate it also. In response to a question on constituent services, Turner said that residents can call her office with any type of problem and she will try to assist.

She indicated that assistance sometimes meant putting the person back in touch with a city agency. Altmann Pannell, who handles constituent services for Turner, was also present. He can be emailed at arpannell@co.pg.md.us. Turner’s email address is imturner@co.pg.md.us.

Led by Jasper Pendergrass’s triple and two home runs, the Belters won 18-7 and 18-3. John Strekel and Clyde Moody shared the pitching in the first game, then Paul Williams went all the way in a heat-shortened five innings. John Benish and Al Morton had three hits each in the opener; Rich Bennof, Tommy Howe, Moody and Willie White had two hits apiece in the closer, with Rex Powell drawing applause for a backing-up catch in right field.

A new era may dawn in the league next week: the first known woman player in at least 12 years. Patricia Gaines signed on after a tryout and will be eligible to play June 15.

Reel and Meal Film Is “Finding Our Voices”

On Monday, June 20 at 7 p.m. the monthly Reel & Meal at the New Deal will offer a free showing of “Finding Our Voices: Stories of American Dissent.” Discussion after the film will be led by Laurel Jensen, the coordinating producer of this Dream Catcher Films 2008 documentary about the post-9/11/2001 anti-war movement. An optional vegan buffet is available for purchase at 6:30 p.m.

Viewers may spot familiar faces and posters in the film’s four years of interviews and street footage, including scenes from rallies in downtown Washington, D.C. The film highlights eight people who were moved by individual experience and conscience to speak out against their government and who helped forge nationwide protest of the invasion of Iraq. They include a diplomat; congressman; grandmother; Code Pink’s Gael Murphy; Washington, D.C. pastor Graylan Hagler; two soldiers and the mother of one who was killed.

The film is not just about those eight; it stands for many others who marched, lobbied, gave up jobs or retirement and risked ridicule, even imprisonment, to live their beliefs and show how to wage peace. (For details see www.findingourvoices.com.) There will also be a brief celebration of the life of the late Greenbelter Esther Webb, long an example of citizen peace activism.

The Reel & Meal at the New Deal program is part of the city’s Peace Month events. It was planned by the Prince George’s County Peace & Justice Coalition, one of several organizations which sponsor the third-Monday film series to raise awareness of and inspire action on their social and environmental concerns. Our Neighbors

Our deepest sympathy to News Review staffer Pat Davis, her family and son-in-law Gregg Klatt on the death of Pat's daughter Gabriella Daley Klatt on June 14, 2011.

Congratulations to:

– Springhill Lake Elementary School (SHLES), which has received a Bronze National Recognition Award from the Alliance for a Healthier Generation, founded by the American Heart Association and the William J. Clinton Foundation. The school joins 274 other schools nationally receiving this honor for their healthy achievements. SHLES revamped its meal service and physical activity programs to improve student and staff well-being in the Alliance fight to combat childhood obesity.

– Paul Agyapong of ERHS, who has received an appointment to West Point by Congressman Steny Hoyer.

When friends Ken Baker of Sicklerville, N.J., and James Ricciuti hooked up on Facebook recently, they hadn't seen each other in 25 years. After arranging a meeting at James' restaurant in Olney, the two, now both married men with children, decided to enter the North Face Endurance Challenge, a 50-mile race. At 4:30 a.m. on June 4 they started the run in darkness in Sterling, Va., encouraging each other along the way, and 13 hours later crossed the finish line in Great Falls, Va.

The two men grew up in Greenbelt and graduated in the same class at Eleanor Roosevelt High School in 1985. Ken's parents, Bob and Mary Ann Baker, still live in Greenbelt. James' mother Mildred Ricciuti is in Delaware on the Eastern Shore. Both families look forward to more reunions in the future.

– Harriet and David Ginsburg, 45-year residents of Hedge-wood Drive, who will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on June 18 with children and friends.

– Greenbelt's Congressman Steny Hoyer, who received a National Bipartisan Leadership Award from Bradley University Institute for Principled Leadership in Public Service, which recognizes a national public servant who has modeled ethical, civil and bipartisan leadership.

– Eleanor Roosevelt High School, which led the county in the amount of scholarship funds earned by their senior class at $19.4 million.

– Leah M. Ginsburg, who graduated with honors from Howard County Schools College in the fall. Proud family include her parents Richard and Rhonda Ginsburg, uncle Mike Ginsburg and grandparents Harriet and David Ginsburg.

– Tiffany Edwards, Johnathan Viruet and big sister Marianna of Lastner Lane welcome baby Xavier Alexander Anibal Viruet, who arrived at Laurel Hospital on June 12, 2011, weighing in at 8 lb., 15 oz.

Send us your reports of new babies, awards, honors, etc. to share with our readers. We'd especially like to hear more from our neighbors in Greenbelt East and Greenbelt West (Franklin Park). To send information for "Our Neighbors" email us at newsreview@greenbelt.com or leave a message at 301-474-6892.

Dedication of Green Chapel Is Sunday

Mowatt United Methodist Church and Boy Scout Troop 746 invite the Greenbelt community to the dedication of the outdoor Green Chapel on Sunday, June 19 at 10 a.m. A reception will follow at 11 a.m. All are welcome.

History

The Green Chapel, located behind the original church, was established in 1973 by Hoyt Matthai and other members of the Troop 746 for Hoyt's Eagle Scout Project. The troop was more than 40 members strong and included Doug Mangum, Mark Felsner, Gary Cousin, Clint Boushell and other young men who have many happy memories and made life-long friends growing up in Greenbelt.

The chapel was renovated in 2009 by Greenbelter Devin Gibson for his Eagle Scout Project. Gibson led a team of scouts and other friends to complete the project, an undertaking of more than 100 hours. In the chapel area, the team removed several dead trees and cut thorns and thickets that had overgrown the area. In an effort to leave the area as natural as possible the fallen trees were used to line the path. Some trees were cut to make bases for bench seating near the fire ring. Mulch was not used as it tends to wash down and gather during hard rains.

Fee Required to Play High School Sports

For the upcoming school year, the Prince George’s County Public School (PGCPS) system has initiated a new annual athletic activity fee of $50 for students who are selected as members of an Interscholastic Athletic Team. The fee is not refundable.

Families experiencing financial hardship may request a modified payment plan or a waiver from the child’s school. Ability to pay the fee will not affect selection for participating in sports, which is based on competitive performance.

More information is available at the PGCPS website under Administrative Procedure 5157 at www.pgcps.org.

Washington Initiative ($1,000) and an additional membership fee for the Anacostia Heritage Trail Association ($600).

Council also increased its contribution to the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad by $28,000 to assist with the purchase of new equipment.

On the operational side, council approved an increase in the Public Works budget to fund $20,000 for the use of temporary workers during FY12 and an additional $50,000 to fund an organizational study of city departments. This proposal, suggested by Putens, was supported by council. Overall council approved changes that increased FY12 expenditures over the manager’s proposed budget total by $276,900.

Expenditure Decreases

Council changes decreasing the manager’s proposed FY12 expenditures included a $20,000 reduction in expected health insurance premiums; a decision not to provide a $5,000 contribution to the West Lanham Hills Volunteer Fire Department for FY12 and a $15,000 reduction for ground maintenance contract work. Council also decided to leave vacant the Building Maintenance Supervisor position affecting the Community Center ($30,000), the Aquatic & Fitness Center ($10,000), Recreation Center ($20,000) and Public Works Administration ($30,000).

Council also decided to leave vacant for one-half year the Assistant Recreation Director position ($55,000). When other transfers such as for debt service are made, the total general fund expenditures total $25,472,200 for FY12, an increase of $80,000.

Each of the changes council decided to make to the manager’s proposed budget were approved separately by council vote. Council then approved an ordinance already prepared that included all the changes made to adopt the total budget and levy the real and personal property tax rates for the fiscal year, beginning July 1, 2011.

With that action the real estate property tax was established at $.79 cents per $100 of assessed valuation and the personal property tax rate on business furnishings and equipment at $1.70 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Bond Authorization

In a separate action, an ordinance to authorize and empower the City of Greenbelt to borrow up to $3,950,000 for the purpose of refinancing the outstanding principal of the city’s existing bonded indebtedness was introduced for first reading. The proposed ordinance will be taken up for approval at the June 20 council meeting. Approval of additional bonding authority and refinancing the city’s existing debt had been proposed by McLaughlin at the same time he presented his proposed FY12 budget in March, with the added financing to be used to pay off the cost overruns of the new Public Works buildings in excess of authorized bond money and to pay for the cost of renovating the city-owned Old Greenbelt

Theatre but the council decided only to proceed with refinancing the existing debt.

In today’s economic climate the city has been able to obtain a much lower rate of interest thereby lowering the amount needed to be budgeted for that purpose.

Council comments following adoption of the budget were generally good. Most members expressed good feelings about the process and the outcome, considering the issues facing the city.

Roberts, although he had cast his vote against the budget adoption, indicated that while he otherwise would be “jumping for joy” that there was no increase in the tax rate, explained his opposition vote because he did not feel that budget adoption should have been “on the backs of small businesses.” This was in reference to the increase in inspection fees he had opposed.

Councilmember Leta Mach labeled it a “good budget” and noted that it got better through examination by council and staff. She said “the inspection fees should reflect the costs for the program” and are “important for the future of the city.” Councilmember Silke Pope generally agreed with the good feeling. She was satisfied with the end product, she said.

Cost Savings

Herling noted, “The adopted budget reflects numerous significant cost savings that the city has taken with this budget and through the last several years as well.” He reiterated his proposals that the city have a marketing director as part of an overall economic strategy to retain and attract new businesses and to help address a 25 percent office vacancy rate within the city.

“While the budget we adopted tonight does get us through the next fiscal year without an increase in property tax and with an increase in our reserves,” Herling said, “I am concerned about our future. For the next fiscal year the budget projects that 67.3 percent of our revenue is derived from the property tax. Do we wish that trend to continue or should we seek other means to raise revenue to meet critical needs?”

Jordan expressed the view that we should be proud of the actions of prior councils in protecting the city’s natural resources. He felt, however, that the city needed a better plan for the future in light of events taking place around Greenbelt. He noted his support also for increased funding for a departmental organizational review.

Mayor Judith Davis then wrapped up discussion with a comment about this budget and those of the two previous years. “First we cut the fat, then we cut the muscle and now we are down to the bone,” she said.

She thanked the city manager and her colleagues for evaluating the budget over 10 worksessions, indicating that some of Greenbelt’s sister cities do their budgets with just a few meetings. Greenbelt, on the other hand, she said, “wants to review and look at every department and program.”

Center. Most funding for the project would be provided by Community Development Block Grant funds.

The main work would be installation of new entrance and exit storefronts, painting, lighting, ceiling tiles, restroom partitions, flooring, cabinets/countertops and new exterior siding. In addition, some of the funds would provide a mobile computer lab at the facility.

Although no action was required for the first reading, Councilmember Leta Mach said she hoped the proposed renovations would consider sustainability issues for materials and fixtures. She also noted a recent announcement by US Airways Foundation of a new program for grants for education projects. She suggested that the proposed computer lab might be a candidate.

City Manager Michael McLaughlin noted, however, that the project involves only what really needs to be done now. He expected a more extensive renovation “may be five years down the road.”

Stream Stabilization

Nearly two years ago council approved final design plans for the project to stabilize and restore the stream in the vicinity of Greenhill and Hillside Roads as it proceeds to the stream valley park between the Lakewood and Woodland Hills subdivisions. Since then city staff has needed considerable time and effort to complete the engineering and permitting requirements and to secure state funding for the project. Staff now was requesting council to award the bid for the project to McDonnell Landscape, Inc. of Brookeville, Md.

The FY11 Capital Projects budget originally included $200,000 for the project, including $137,000 in grant funds from the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE). Following recent discussion with MDE officials, Terri Hruby of the Planning and Community Development Department reported that the agency has agreed to increase their funding by $147,000 because of the water quality benefits and prior investments in design and permitting.

That action brought the total amount in FY11 project funds available to $327,280, just $18,820 shy of the project’s expected cost. Hruby assured council there are sufficient funds in the Capital Projects budget to cover the shortfall.

When she cautioned that there may be change orders during completion of the project, the representative at the meeting from McDonnell Landscape assured council there would be no change orders. Council approved the award of bid to McDonnell Landscape.

Audit Services

Council had previously requested staff to issue a Request for Proposals (RFP) for audit services for the FY2011 year-end audit. Staff reported they had sent requests to four firms that had previously responded to RFPs for the city’s audit. Proposals had been received from Reznick Group ($29,830); McGladry Pullen ($30,250); Lindsey & Associates ($32,752); and Clifton Gunderson ($35,500). Over the past 26 years all firms conducted audits for Greenbelt.

After brief discussion, council agreed to select McGladry Pullen for the FY11 audit.

Stormwater Legislation

In the last item of business, council revisited the stormwater legislation proposed by the Prince George’s County Council. The issue had been considered by the county council last year (CB-80-2010) but the bill had been placed on hold because of insufficient support. On May 17, 2011, however, Council Chair Ingrid Turner introduced CB-15-2011, which had been requested by County Executive Rushern Baker. That bill is intended to satisfy requirements of the 2007 State of Maryland Stormwater Management Regulations adopted in May 2009.

Staff had placed the issue on council’s agenda because the bill was scheduled to be discussed by the county’s Transportation, Housing and the Environment Committee (THE) on June 9. Since Greenbelt had strongly opposed the earlier CB-80-2010, staff advised council that CB-15-2011 also falls short of the strong stormwater standards supported by council and by county and regional environmental organizations.

The bill’s most serious flaw is that it requires redevelopment projects to retain only 0.5 inches for projects approved after May 4, 2010, and 0.75 inches for projects approved after May 4, 2016. Other requirements are equally loose and weak.

Hruby assured council she would develop a letter for council to submit to the THE Committee and to Turner by the date of the THE meeting.

Council directed that such a letter be prepared and reviewed by council for submission to the THE.

Youth Spring Triathlon Draws Local Athletes

by Matthias Early

On Saturday, June 4 as the sun started to show itself above the Greenbelt outdoor pool, all of us older kids crouched with anticipation next to the water. As the starting gun fired, we dove into the pool and the 4th Annual Youth Sprint Triathlon began.

The water was frigid, despite its being a hot, muggy morning. We swam as fast as we could from one end of the pool to the other and back, then hauled ourselves onto dry land. I struggled to put socks on my wet feet and quickly shoved on my shoes.

This was my first triathlon, so I followed the other kids and ran as fast as I could down the hill to the basketball court where we had parked our bikes. I pedaled hard over the bumpy grass and slippery gravel around the perimeter of the playing field.

Once we got to the far side, we ended up on the concrete trail next to the tennis courts and headed back the way we came. The bike race continued down the trail behind the library. We then went through the small tunnel under the road, up around the playground and back again through the tunnel.

By this time, the sun was blazing and I was sweating hard. We biked back to the basketball court and abandoned our bikes for the final part of the triathlon. As I started to run, I realized that this was a longer race than I had expected and I was feeling exhausted. We ran along the bike trail beside the tennis courts and a race official directed us to follow the path around the lake to the band stage.

At this point a running shoe flew off the foot of fellow triathlete Clara Beckert, but she valiantly continued the race with only one shoe. "I just wanted to finish," she told me afterward. Clara eventually went on to win first prize in her age group.

At the finish line, I was extremely hot and tired but relieved to see a large ice chest full of ice-pops and cold water bottles. We all rested in the shade as the younger kids made their way across the finish line.

Trophy Winners

The Greenbelt Recreation Department sponsored the triathlon and presented large trophies to winners in each age group. Beckert (the contestant with only one shoe) came in first place for 14-year-olds, Manuel Ayala (15-year-olds), Katie Warner (13-year-olds), Eric Freeman, Jr. (12-year-olds), Alex Fletcher (11-year-olds), Corina Miko (9-year-olds) and RyLee Roberts (8-year-olds) also took first place.

Everyone who participated received a medal, a special T-shirt and lots of delicious ice-pops. Although I didn't win a trophy, I really enjoyed the race and definitely plan to do the Greenbelt Youth Sprint Triathlon again next year.

Winners of the 4th Annual Youth Spring Triathlon show off their medals.

Matthias Early and Clara Beckert begin the swim segment.

Matthias Early (reporter and competitor) moves from the pool to the next phase.

aggravated assaults were also down. This good news was offset by a sharp increase in B&Es for that sector, from 10 to 21.

Craze said his officers are well aware of this recent rise in burglaries. They are following up on some good leads and he expected to be reporting apprehensions in the near future.

For Greenbelt Center, the 53 reported crimes equaled that for the first four months of 2010. The most significant change occurred in the number of robberies committed – eight this year as compared to one last year.

Of these, one involved the robbery of the Greenbelt Credit Union, a case according to Craze, which is under investigation by the FBI. Two others were closed by arrests – in one case, a non-resident adult and in the other by two juveniles, one a resident.

In the other five cases, suspects have been identified but in four the victims, for various reasons, have declined or are expected to decline to prosecute. Crimes were up by two for motor vehicle thefts, remained the same for B&Es and increased by one for rape in Greenbelt Center. These increases were offset by decreases in aggravated assaults and larcenies.

Top 5 Dental Procedures For a Beautiful Smile

McCarl Dental Group

Are you self-conscious about your smile? A healthy smile contributes more than just beauty; it is a vital component of good overall health. Every day dental patients ask about options for improving the health and appearance of their smile. The great news is that dental procedures and especially cosmetic dental procedures have improved dramatically over the last 10 to 15 years. As a result, there’s an array of affordable options that are no longer a luxury limited to Hollywood celebrities. There are a wide range of choices available for improving the health and appearance of your smile. Speak to a dental professional who can help you determine which dental procedures are best for your needs.

If you’ve thought about improving your smile, this guide can help you learn about the latest techniques in dentistry and cosmetic dental procedures.

Invisalign Orthodontics is a simple and convenient way to straighten your teeth. Clear, thin Invisalign trays straighten teeth and correct your bite. Unlike metal braces, almost no one else can tell you are wearing Invisalign. Straightening crooked teeth with Invisalign orthodontics is more comfortable, more convenient, less expensive and usually faster than metal braces. For most adults, treatment time is just under one year. Overall gum and bone health are improved when teeth are properly aligned and fit together with an ideal bite. Straight teeth are not only important for a beautiful smile - they contribute to a healthy smile!

Dental Implants are an excellent example of the benefits of new dental technology and are often an ideal solution for replacing missing teeth. A dental implant serves as a tooth root and anchors a replacement tooth, bridge or denture to your jaw. When dental implants are restored with porcelain crowns, they look, feel and function like natural teeth. One of the most common uses of mini dental implants is stabilization of dentures. Anchoring a denture with one or more dental implants solves problems commonly associated with dentures, including concern and discomfort from loose and poorly fitting dentures.

Teeth Whitening or Bleaching with professional whitening gel often reduces or eliminates tooth stains and discoloration that occurs over time. Patients have great success with the Zoom and DayWhite custom take home whitening tray systems. The results can be achieved quickly and you can enjoy whiter teeth for a long time.

Porcelain Veneers are a thin layer of porcelain applied to the front of teeth. Veneers allow dentists to change the color, size and shape of teeth for a more aesthetic smile. Porcelain veneers are an excellent option for people with tooth discoloration or heavy stains that do not lighten with professional tooth whitening.

Dental veneers are custom made. The thickness of the veneer and the amount of tooth reduction necessary varies with each patient’s specific needs.

Crowns are used to cover or “cap” damaged teeth starting at the gum line. In addition to strengthening the damaged tooth, a crown can be used to improve the tooth’s appearance, shape or alignment. In the past, porcelain crowns were fused to metal and were less natural looking. Today, all-porcelain crowns are more durable, comfortable and much more attractive.

“Talent Show” was the title of a story the second grade had been reading in school, so they made puppets and painted backdrops. Fourth grade students painted a mural with artist Lucy Dirksen, depicting the different ecosystems represented in Maryland. Fifth graders were studying westward expansion, so artist Sarah Garcia guided them through making a paper quilt reminiscent of the memory quilts pioneers had made. They also painted Native American-style animal totems.

In preparation for the school’s annual Multicultural Dinner, the first grade made Mexican coil pots and Oaxaca-style painted animals and explored Mexican songs, dances and musical instruments, while third graders tried out some different kinds of African art. Since sixth graders took their field trip close to Earth Day, they painted Mother Earth posters and created hand-made books from recycled materials.

Most students also had the opportunity to take a juggling workshop with circus instructor Greg May. They learned how to spin plates and juggle scarves and balls while at the same time improving their listening skills, hand-eye coordination, persistence, patience and self-confidence.

As well as coordinating annual field trips to the Community Center, the Recreation Department has brought the arts into the school.

In-School Programs

In November Community Center dance instructors Angella Foster and Shannon Brauner-Potsiadlo went into the school to do creative movement workshops with the kindergarten classes.

The Recreation Department has also run a weekly after-school art class at the school. Children from all grade levels enjoyed painting, collage and sculpture, often using recycled materials or items from nature which they had gathered from the school grounds.

On June 2 Arts Supervisor Nicole DeWald led workshops for the third and fourth grade students at the school as part of their Career Day event.

Students learned about the role of artists, curators, art-handlers, preparators and docents in presenting art exhibitions through activities. In one round, teams of students created living “one-minute sculptures” developed by Austrian artist Erwin Wurm. Students erupted in loud, joyful cheers when their teammates completed the pieces. Several asked to take home photographs of Wurm’s work so they could create the sculptures again at home.

School staff observing the various arts workshops throughout the year have been happy to see the children engaged and having fun with no threats or fear of failure, being able to express themselves and make connections between art and the textbook material they study at school.

One teacher summed it up: “Awesome!”

Anne Gardner is an arts education specialist with the Greenbelt Recreation Department.

Second graders Bahati Wilmore, Donovan Goggins and Marcela Jose work on their art projects.

City Notes

Animal control staff report one dog that had been abandoned in a laundry room was taken into custody and one snake was removed from a resident’s home.

Planning staff met with representatives for Greenbelt Station’s south core to discuss progress on finding a new builder.

Recreation staff continues to work with a contractor to make improvements to the Braden Field tennis courts. Contract terms are being reviewed, as well as contingency items related to the work.

One of the HVAC systems at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center gym was successfully installed and is working properly. The gym re-opened for use on Friday, June 10.

Rangers reported no suspicious activity at Northway Fields or Hamilton Community Gardens after a group was spotted using a firearm at Northway Fields two weeks ago.

Riversdale Offers Free Jazz Concerts

Bring a blanket or lawn chair to Riversdale’s grounds to enjoy the grass under one’s toes and jazz wafting through the air. This year the concerts have been moved to Thursdays so visitors can patronize the Riverdale Park Farmers Market, buying dinner before heading over to Riversdale. Guests also have the option of bringing a picnic basket or purchasing dinner on the grounds sold by the Calvert House Inn. Concerts are free and run from 7 to 8 p.m. The Thursday evening concert season kicks off with the Susan Jones Jazz Quartet on Thursday, June 16.
